

FREDERICK TEMPLE AN APPRECIATION

But, at the boat, all had not gone according to Amos' plan during the night. The grey man, still puzzling. He fumbled for the bottle beside the bed, gripping it with a sweaty hand. His entire body was wet. My crown, lying dressed as you see me now in a green meadow. In my pocket was a map that told me. In the gilded frame now was no longer then- reflection, but a rolling land of green and yellow. Tell you. "Like these?" 246 Samuel R. Ddany. Hollis strokes her color board and shoots concentric spheres of hard primaries expanding through the lights, sound, color, and all the rest of the systems. Finally some nameless tech comes on circuit to give. Bill Buddy: As stated on Page 12 of the Zorphwar Handbook, any Captain completing six. "It was one of the fruit," she said, gasping for breath and coughing. "I was heating it in a beaker, turned away, and it blew. I guess it sort of stunned me. The next thing I knew, Marty was carrying me out here. Hey, I have to get back in there! There's another one . . . it could be dangerous, and the damage, I have to check on that?" She struggled to get up but Lang held her down. "Hey," I say. He watches the men running, sees them launch the boat. As they pull away, he is able to keep the focus near enough to see and hear them. One calls, "My God, who's at the helm?" Another, a bearded man with a face gone tallow-pale, replies, "Never mind? row!" They are staring down into the sea. After a moment one looks up, then another. The Mary Celeste, with three of the four sails on her foremast set, is gliding away, slowly, now faster; now she is gone. Then he showed her how a white light shining through it would break apart and fill her hands with all the colors she could think of. Not long afterward I left. I didn't want to be hung-over on my first spell of picket duty. It was a cool. "Now," said the grey man, "here is a map." Surprise, after another short pause, she said in a quiet voice, "You're right, of course, Matthew. Thank. 'M not lying. I was arguing that Selene shouldn't use any of your time." "I don't know. Finally, with ten. Her pictures, though, did not do her justice. Not only was I surprised to find her taller than I. As die man started to go, Amos said, "It seems a shame to take someone's clothes away, especially since I might not come back anyway. Give my rags to whoever owns this suit to keep for me until I. On December 12, 1968, I gave a talk to a meeting of doctors and lawyers in San Jose, California. * Naturally, I was asked to speak on some subject that would interest both groups. Some instinct told me that medical malpractice suits might interest both but would nevertheless not be a useful topic. I spoke on genetic engineering instead, therefore, and, toward the end, discussed the matter of cloning. I came out of the post-coital lassitude to realize my nerves were . not cauterized after all. Lee Killough has written a series of superior stories for F&SF that share a common theme (the future of the arts) and background (an artist's colony called Aventine). The tales are completely separate entities and may be enjoyed on their own. This one concerns the visit to Aventine of Selene and Amanda, two different personalities that snare the body of one beautiful young woman. Congreve's voice warmed to his theme, and his manner became more urgent and persuasive. "Developments in genetic engineering and embryology make it possible to store human genetic information in electronic form in the ship's computers. For a small penalty in space and weight requirements, the ship's inventory could be expanded to include everything necessary to create and nurture a first generation of, perhaps, several hundred fully human embryos once a world is found which meets the requirements of the preliminary surface and atmospheric tests. They could be raised and tended by special-purpose robots that would have available to them as much of the knowledge and history of our culture as can be programmed into the ship's computers. All the resources needed to set up and support an advanced society would come from the planet itself. Thus, while the first generation was being raised through infancy in orbit, other machines would establish metals- and materials-processing facilities, manufacturing plants, farms, transportation systems, and bases suitable for occupation. Within a few generations a thriving colony could be expected to have established itself, and regardless of what happens here the human race would have survived. The appeal of this approach is that, if the commitment was made now, the changes involved could be worked into the existing schedule for SP3, and launch could still take place in five years as projected.'?Do you know what it's called?" he asked.
